The Origins of Carrot Seed Essential Oil

Carrot seed essential oil has a deep-rooted history dating back to ancient times. The seeds from the Daucus carota plant, a wild carrot native to Europe and parts of Asia, were once used by ancient civilizations for their health benefits. These seeds, when distilled, produce an oil rich in vitamins and antioxidants, making it a staple in traditional medicine practices.

How is Carrot Seed Essential Oil Made?

The process of extracting this valuable oil is intricate. Typically, the seeds of the wild carrot plant are subjected to steam distillation, which involves using steam to release the essential oil from the seeds. This method ensures that all the beneficial properties of the oil are preserved. The outcome is a light yellow to amber-colored oil, known for its earthy, woody aroma.
