What is Geranium Essential Oil?

Geranium Essential Oil is derived from the leaves and stems of the Pelargonium graveolens plant. This isn't just any ordinary shrub; it's known for its aromatic leaves that work wonders in making the essential oil. Extracted through a process known as steam distillation, this oil has a comforting floral aroma reminiscent of roses, earning it a prime spot in the perfumery and aromatherapy worlds.

How is Geranium Essential Oil Made?

The process of making Geranium Essential Oil is a fascinating fusion of nature and technology. Picture the verdant fields of Geranium plants, their leaves glistening with dew. After harvesting, the leaves and stems are subjected to steam distillation. This meticulous process ensures that all the beneficial compounds, especially the aromatic ones, are captured effectively. The end product is a concentrated oil that carries the essence of the plant itself.
