Botanical and Scientific Overview

Scientific Name/Botanical Name

The scientific name for Sage Spanish is Salvia lavandulifolia. Known for its aromatic leaves, the plant belongs to the Lamiaceae family, which includes other aromatic herbs.

Oil Origin and Extraction

Sage Spanish is predominantly found in parts of Spain and southern France. The oil is extracted through steam distillation of the leaves and flowering tops of the plant. This method ensures the preservation of its rich aromatic compounds, providing a high-quality essential oil.

Characteristics and Odor

With a clear to pale yellow hue, Sage Spanish Organic Essential Oil is renowned for its refreshing, herbaceous scent. Its odor is often described as a mix of eucalyptus and lavender, providing a calming yet invigorating aroma.

Consistency and Evaporation Rate

The oil is relatively thin, making it easy to blend with other essential oils. It has a medium evaporation rate, which allows it to deliver sustained effects when involved in aromatherapy applications.

Country of Origin

As the name suggests, this essential oil originates primarily from Spain. The Mediterranean climate contributes significantly to the robust composition of its aromatic and chemical properties.
